

SENATE FARM 'BLOC' FOR LARGER LOANS

Favor Changing Federal Reserve Law to Help Agricultural Interests.

FOR A LIVE STOCK BOARD

Nineteen Senators of Both Parties Pledged to Aid in Passing Measures.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD, New York Herald Bureau, Washington, D. C., June 4.

The Senate agricultural "bloc" at a meeting in the Senate chamber today formulated a program of legislation looking to changes in the present Federal Reserve system of special benefit to the agricultural industry.

In addition to this the Senators agreed to get behind the bill for regulation of the packing and livestock industry through the creation of a Federal livestock commission. Nineteen Senators attended the meeting, about equally divided between Democrats and Republicans.

The subcommittee on amendments to the Federal Reserve act is headed by Senator Smith (S. C.), Democrat, who is to introduce the bills introduced today. Included in the measures are these:

"Membership on the Federal Reserve Board extended to include, ex officio, the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Commerce, the 'bloc' being of the opinion that the present personnel of the board is not sufficiently sympathetic to and acquainted with the needs of agriculture.

"A mandatory requirement that Federal Reserve banks shall make loans on duly certified warehouse receipts for agricultural products.

"Extension to two months of the time loans which may be made to farmers by Federal Reserve banks.

"Lowering of the discount rate to 5 per cent.

"Federal Reserve banks to loan a larger proportion of their capital stock on farm security."

Every Senator present pledged himself to use his best efforts to obtain approval in Congress of these measures.

GETS PRISON TERM AS DRUG VENDOR

X-Ray Expert Is Sentenced to Blackwell's Island.

Leo Schlessinger of 145 Sterling place, Brooklyn, formerly assistant pharmacist and X-ray expert at the Brooklyn Jewish Hospital, was sentenced yesterday in the Court of Special Sessions to not less than six months or more than three years in the penitentiary at Blackwell's Island, where it was alleged he has been distributing narcotics to inmates.

When Schlessinger was arraigned for sentence James A. Swan, probation officer, described alleged drug operations of the defendant for the last two years, saying that Schlessinger had as an accomplice a male nurse in the City Hospital on the island.

The drugs were said to have been supplied the prisoners at the hospital and those in the penitentiary who became ill were sent to the hospital for treatment. The penitentiary inmates frequently became ill. A watch was stationed recently in the hospital and the story of Schlessinger's visits to the island was obtained from a man who had taken an overdose of morphine. When Schlessinger went to Blackwell's Island a week ago he was arrested, and it was said he had narcotics in his possession. He was convicted of this charge.

$25,000 COCAINE FOUND HIDDEN ON SHIP HERE

A large water bucket containing cocaine worth about $25,000 in wholesale reckoning was discovered under a pile of shoes and dirt on the United States Mail steamship Princess Matoika yesterday by customs men in charge of Inspector A. O. Hokenes.

The customs men, digging around some more, turned up a large quantity of cloth, silk and liquor. All this was seized, as it was not claimed by any one in the nondescript crew on board because of the shipping strike. The ship arrived from Naples via Boston.

SAILOR IN SLACKERS' LIST GETS CORRECTION

War Department Made Mistake on W. J. Becker.

The War Department has removed the charge of desertion standing against Walter J. Becker, a registrant of Local Board No. 81. The War Department's statement accompanying notice of its action follows:

"Mr. Becker was inducted into military service from a status of delinquency on May 3, 1918, and upon his failure to report for duty as directed he became a deserter. Records of the Navy Department show that this man enlisted on June 15, 1918, at Newport, R. I. In view of this service in the navy during the world war, under the policy of the War Department the charge of desertion was set aside. Mr. Becker's name was not removed from the deserters' list prior to publication because of clerical error."

IMMIGRANTS RIOT OVER SUGAR BOWLS

Have First Peep of Sweet in Six Years.

Several bowls of sugar gracing their breakfast tables at Ellis Island recently caused a riot among the immigrants there, according to Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis. The Commissioner told the story at a luncheon given yesterday by 450 members of the Teachers' Interstate Organization at the Pennsylvania Hotel. The Commissioner was one of the speakers. As a result of the burst of joy at seeing sugar for the first time in six years four of the immigrants had to be carried to the hospital. One of them suffered a broken nose and two fractured ribs.

The Commissioner told of the unsanitary conditions that had existed on Ellis Island, that water had not been served with meals and the immigrants were not given soap or towels.

"There is no question in my mind but that you can make an immigrant an anarchist over night at Ellis Island, but with the right kind of treatment you can start him on the way to glorious citizenship," he declared.

Theodore G. Risley, Assistant Secretary of Labor; Health Commissioner Conneland, Mrs. Harry Wilson, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith Edwards and Mrs. John Sherwin Crosby were the other speakers. Charles Rozelle, president of the teachers' organization, presided.

PEGGY JOYCE SOLD JEWELS IN EUROPE

Did Not Smuggle Any Gems Into U. S. on Her Return, Attorneys Assert.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD, Chicago, June 4.—Before Peggy Joyce returned to America last October she parted with every article of the $500,000 worth of jewelry her husband, James Stanley Joyce, had bought for her in Paris and London.

This was the answer made by Peggy's attorneys to the charge that she had smuggled the fortune in gems into the United States.

Louis G. Caldwell of Kirkland, Patterson & McCormick went to the Federal Building and made the statement to District Attorney Charles F. Clynne and Special Investigator Williams, following a conversation with Weymouth Kirkland, who is now in New York procuring Peggy's affidavits in answer to the recent charges made by her husband.

While the attorneys would not commit themselves as to why Peggy had disposed of the jewels, it was understood she had sold or pawned most of them in order to maintain the luxurious standard of living which she says was taught her by Joyce. It was also gathered that she parted with some of them to prevent paying duty on them.

In his interview with Mr. Clynne and Mr. Williams, Mr. Caldwell specifically denied that Peggy had brought back with her any jewelry except the several hundred thousand dollars' worth which was purchased for her by her husband in this country.

"I can assure you, gentlemen," Mr. Caldwell said, "that you are wasting time in investigating this feature of the case. We are ready to let you question our client as much as you please and to place at your disposal all the information we have in the matter. Mrs. Joyce is completely innocent of the insinuations of smuggling which have been lodged against her."

The declaration of the attorney was made on the heels of the receipt by Mr. Williams of a telegram from New York stating that Peggy had made a formal declaration of only $100 worth of jewelry when she returned on the Aquitania.

"She must have sold an awful lot of the stuff she got abroad," was Mr. Williams' comment. "We shall continue our investigation."

Two special investigators from Washington have been in Chicago for the last week conferring with Mr. Joyce regarding the amounts of jewelry he bought for Mrs. Joyce while in Paris.
